VISIONS

Sean,
Have a super,
fantastic, excellent summer! Don't get in TOO much trouble! Also don't be a total stranger next year!! Hope to have a class w/ you again so I can watch you trip into class stoned! ♡.

Visions are imaginary ideas that excel presentations. Layton High has all types of visionaries, some may be contemplating while others are just glancing. No matter what the view, Lancers have pride in the past and faith in the future. Without the use of our imagination we will never surpass the present.

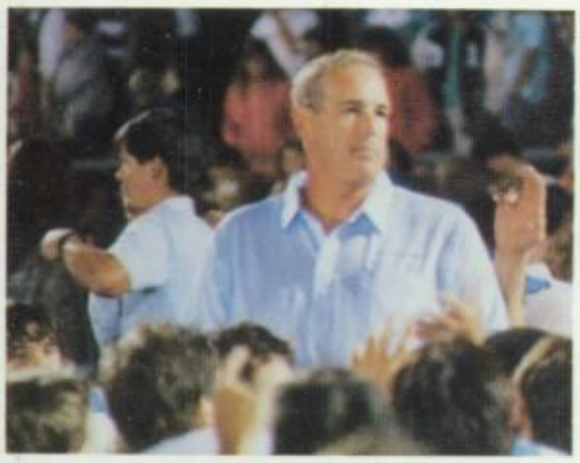
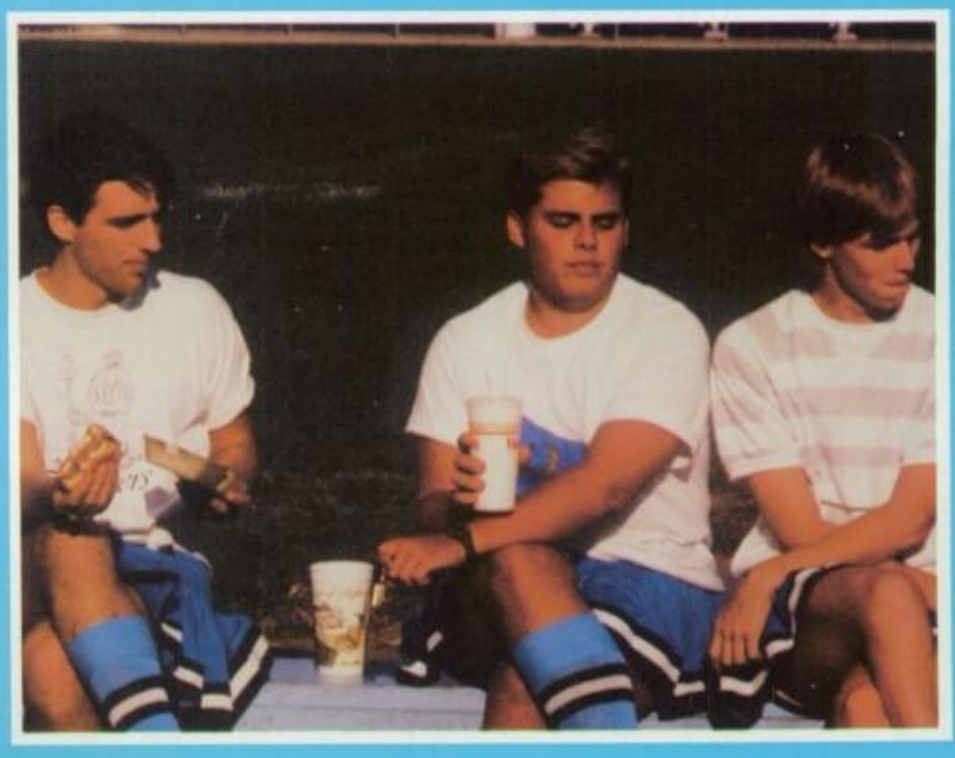
EXCELSIOR . . . EVER UPWARD!



Last summer the Student Body Officers ran head on with the task of finding a 1987-88 school year theme. They wanted a theme that could encompass the whole student body and add a roman touch to tie in past Lancer traditions with new Lancer expectations. "Excelsior . . . Ever Upward" was presented in the welcome back assembly. Some greeted it with wild enthusiasm, others with shrieks of excitement, and there were those sophomores who sat bewildered as to the meaning of such chaos. All things taken into consideration, the feedback was spectacular.

HOMECOMING



Homecoming week was filled with many fun and exciting activiites. There were contests held daily that included things such as Chariot Races, Ice Cream Drop, and Stinkie Twinkie Races. Filled as the days, the nights were eventful. The Bonfire and Peprally and the ever popular parade, the Movie Mania Night, and of course the Football game! Last, but certainly not least, came the Homecoming Dance. Over 400 attended this gala event, and that total included many of Layton's Alumni. It was a wonderful week to spend at the home of the Lancers, and will always remain one of a kind!

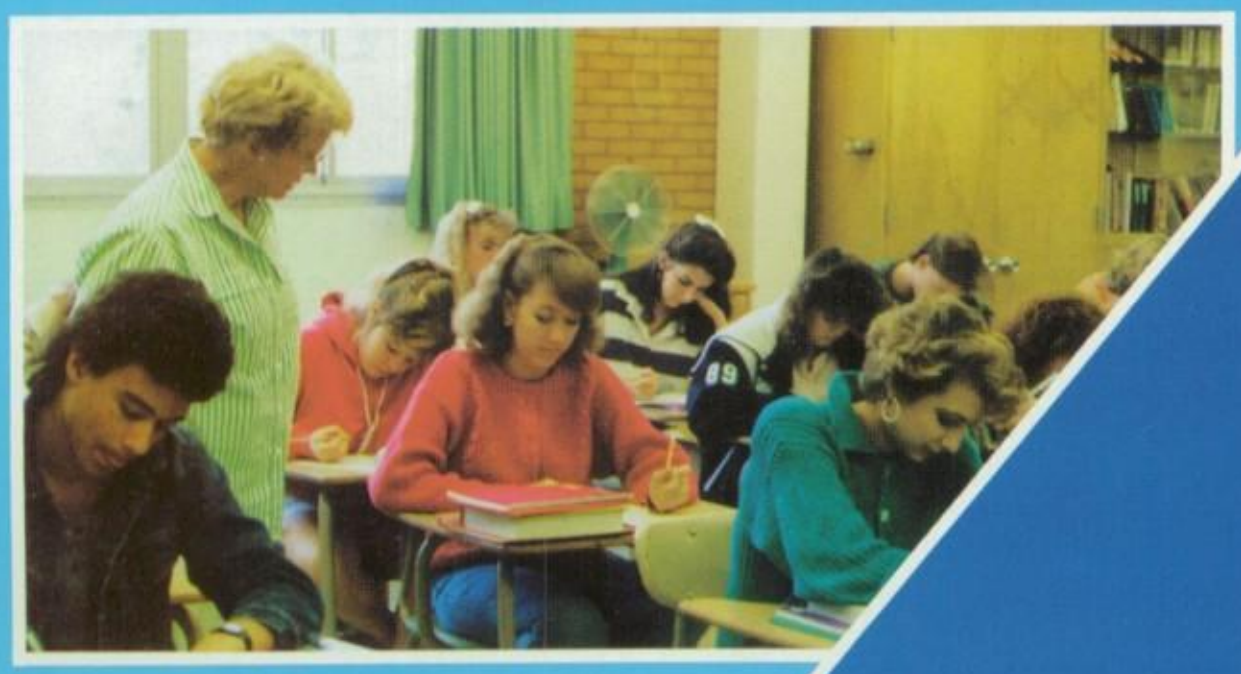
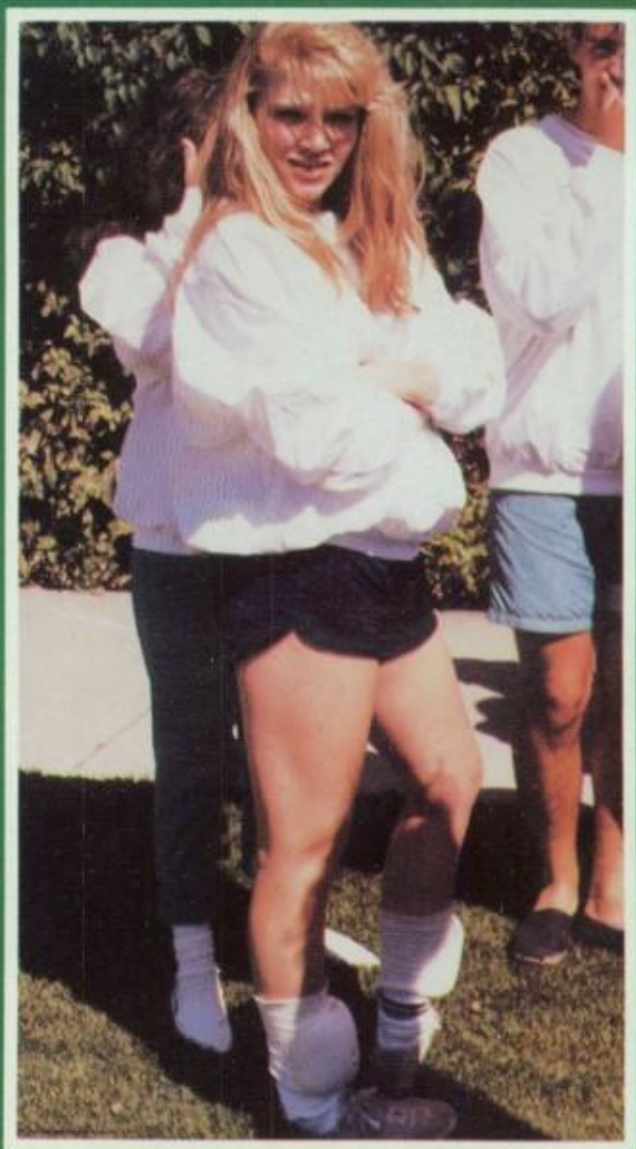
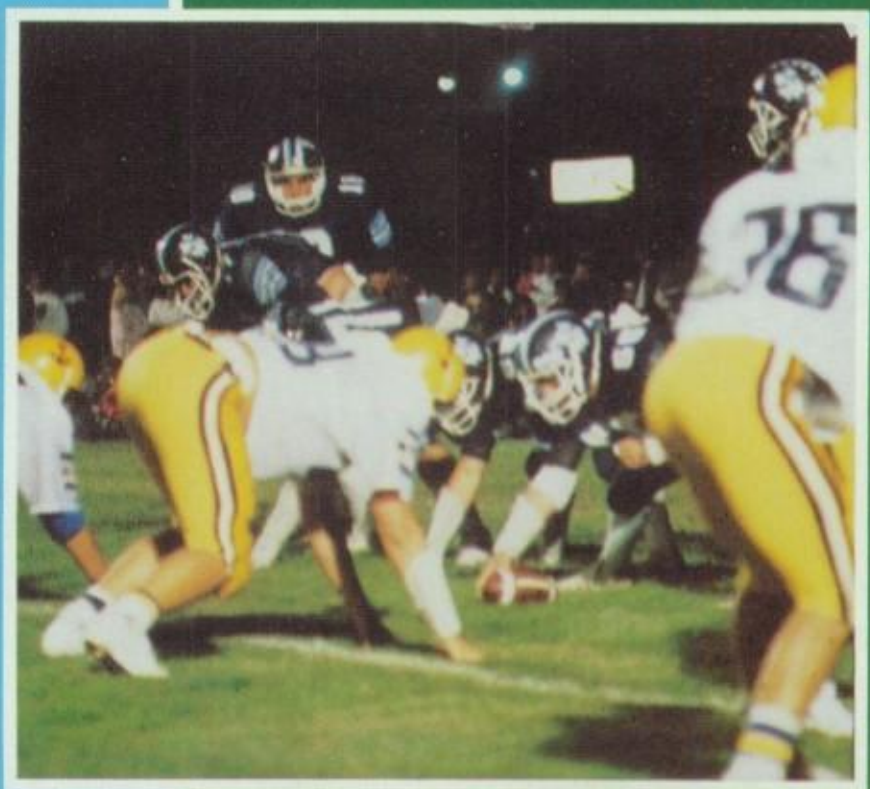
When in Layton do as the Lancers do

Whether it's studying, playing, having fun, spectating, or just hangin' out with your friends, the Lancers do it all! This year many took part in things such as the Sophomore's SAT tests, the Layton vs. Bonneville Homeming game, the Senor's AP exams, the Volleyball tournament, and especially the homework. Almost every day you could find students gathered in various parts of the school, for tennis practice, play tryouts, baseball games and assemblies. The Lancer's balanced heavy schedules, trying to give equal time to not only school and home but many times to an array of outside jobs. A majority of the kids worked at such places as Hardees, Sizzler, Weber State College, and Tom's. For many, these daily tasks became a juggling act, at which each one became very proficient. High school life is a full time job of hard work, organization, and especially fun, and at Layton High we have become experts in all of these areas.







STUDENT

The Student Body Officers brought enthusiasm, creativity, and organization into student government and student activities. They unified the studentbody, clubs, teams, and administration, while providing a few laughs. They carried out past Lancer traditions while adding a few new traditions for years to come. The dedication these student leaders shared showed through the accomplishments they made. They organized Sophomore orientation, welcome back assembly, Morp Dance, and the farewell assembly. In between these activities they juggled student festivities throughout the year.

No this isn't just a group of youngsters who enjoy having their picture taken in matching shirts, it's the famed SENIOR COMMITTEE! This is the group of people responsible for the extraordinarily exciting Homecoming week. They planned all of the activities such as the Stinkie Twinkie Races, the Chariot Races, "Sixteen Candles", and the Bonfire. They also commandeered Senior Week and all of its happenings and of course the Senior Cotillion. Most importantly though was graduation. They are to be commended for their hard work and dedication because it turned out to be a super year!

PERIODIC CHART OF THE ELEMENTS

ROYALTY

"The dance of the year, The dream of a life time."

Tuxedos, formal dresses, limousines and extravagant dinners all sound like the requirements for the gala opening of a new Hollywood movie. But Hollywood is not the setting and a spectacular new film is not the reason for the above mentioned glitz. The occasion may be less international but certainly not less important to the many Layton society seekers who attend the most prestigious social event of the year, "JUNIOR PROM." What coed has not dreamed of the evening when she would be swept off her feet by her Lancer in shining armour, and being wined and dined until the early morning hours. And what boy has not planned for months in precise detail, the step by step ritual of pre-prom preparations. There is money to be saved, tuxes' to be rented, flowers to be ordered, cars to be washed and dinner reservations to be made, all with the logistic precision of the most efficient organization possible. The young participants may at other times forget to hand in their assignments in class or fail to remember commitments at home, but for this special "once in a lifetime" moment, no detail is forgotten and none of the process is left to chance.

And was all the effort, expense and time worth it once it was over? Just ask anyone who has ever attended their own Junior Prom and you will probably hear the same answer. "It was a once in a lifetime opportunity and I wouldn't have missed it for anything." "Junior Prom will go down in my memory as the social highlight of my high school days."

"Old Glory"

WE THE PEOPLE . . .

The Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution has been marked with parades, banners, speeches and seminars, but the true celebration is the American people. The oldest working Constitution in the world turned 200 years old in 1987. Its ratification, addition of amendments, and significant court interpretations will provide Americans with enough "celebration" to last till the turn of the next century. The document however, should provide the nation with an opportunity to "celebrate" the government's continual development into the next century as well. For, despite the document's interesting history, it is its continued use which makes the Constitution important.

In 1787, the founders of the nation developed the Constitution. When their writing was finished, they packed the original document into a tin box with other important convention materials, and stored them away. Once the District of Columbia was established, the Constitution was stored (still in its box) in various closets and back rooms of the Washington beuracracy. In 1812, to avoid having it torched by the invading British army, the Constitution, Declaration of Independence, and other state documents were hidden in a granery on the outskirts of the capitol. When the war with Britain ended, the Constitution returned to its closeted state. For the first hundred years, few people ever referred to the original document. Then, in 1887, the Constitution was displayed for a modest celebration of its 100th birthday. Not until the 1950's was the present display case and area built for this significant part of the American heritage. It "looks" pretty good for being 200 years old, probably because it was physically ignored for so long. However, what makes the document "feel" so good is the fact that its meaning has not been ignored over the ignored over the st 200 years.

A constant reinterpretation of Constitutional issues and a tremendous flexibility within the original document have made it withstand the tests of a changing nation. As Americans have broadened their democratic and representative horizons, the meaning of the Constitution has expanded to meet the nation's needs. The addition of a Bill of Rights, due process, and increased voting power have kept the document up to date. As Americans have moved from a period of government "for" the people to a government "by" the people, the Constitution has allowed for such changes.

Still, despite its flexibility, the Constitution, like the people it serves, faces new challenges. As Goethe said, " . . . people gain no better government than they deserve." Issues like abortion, pornography and euthenasia demand that Americans decide what they deserve. Past issues such as racial equality, discrimination against women, and student rights, have found protection in the Constitution. However, that protection was hard fought for and is still incomplete. American society asks a great deal of this 200 year old document. The best proof that it will pass the tests is its longevity and the strength of the American people themselves.

More than a piece of paper, the Constitution is the heartbeat of the American people. As fireworks settle and the bands cease to play, listen to the real celebration, the sound of the American people debating, deciding, and redefining their democratic government for the challenges of the next century.—Claudia Schroader

"I hate this job!"

Wednesday, the 25th November was the day of the Harvest Assembly and the Harvest Ball. Presented by the F.F.A., both reflected the Harvest theme. The assembly featured a synopsis of the week's activities such as skits, and a pig-kissing ceremony. The "girls' choice" dance that evening was attended by Layton High couples sporting matching attire who danced to a variety of music. Royalty for the evening were Lori Wright, Donette Golightly and Monica Reynolds.

"HARVEY"

November 12, 13, 14 and 16 were the dates for the school's own command performance of "Harvey." The play was directed by Mr. Peterson and co-directed by Tammy Williams. "Harvey" is the story of Elwood, who believes he has a rabbit (Harvey) for a friend. All of Elwood's friends think he is crazy, but in the end, Harvey could be real.

Veta Simmons expresses her distress to her daughter Myrtle Mae.

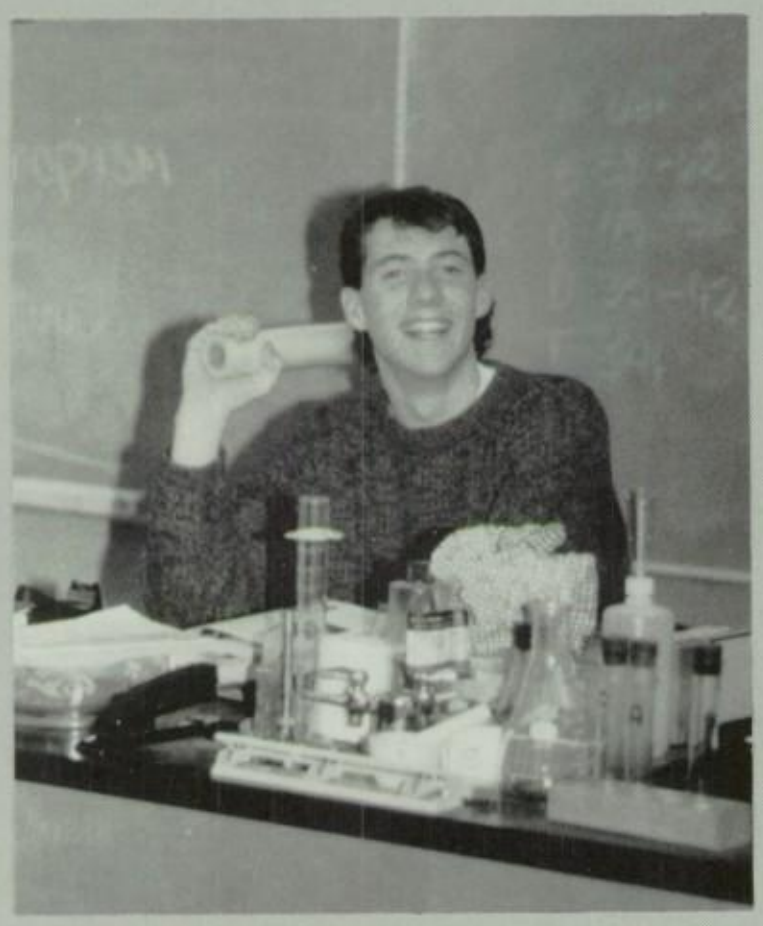
ROMAN HOLIDAYS



MON. Ice Races TUE. SBO's Eat It!! WED

At Layton High School, it has become an annual tradition to hold a Roman Holidays celebration in honor of our mascot who resides in the mists of antiquity, the Lancer. This year, they were held the week beginning January 11. The Holidays serve as a reminder of the Roman Lancer's ideals of honor, virtue, and duty. These ideals are best described in the words of the poem, Invictus, read aloud at the opening of the Holidays.

Invictus

Out of the night that covers me, black as the pit from pole to pole, I thank whatever Gods may be for my unconquerable soul in the fell clutch of circumstance . . . I have not winced nor cried aloud . . . Under the bludgeoning of chance, my head is bloody, but unbowed.

SHAKESPEAREAN

On March third, the Sophomore English classes put on a festival of Shakespeare. Each student was responsible for some sort of contribution to the evening. Some of the things to be seen were strolling minstrels, wax museum scenes, scenes from some of Shakespeare's plays, and medieval puppet shows. Many students had to dress up if they were involved in an activity that was "public." Other students did work behind the scenes such as setting up, making food to be eaten that night, constructing projects that dealt with this time period, and cleaning up. It made for a very educational and fun evening, and best of all it left those who attended a little bit more cultured.

For everyone else it was a normal day, but for the new Sophomore officers a time consuming task lay ahead. The planning began in August but as soon as February rolled around they were ready to present us with the greatest sophomore week of all time. Activities took place daily, filling all of our lives with excitement! They created their Sweetheart Ball and the results were elaborate.

The Sophomore Committee began their work as soon as they were chosen. They took part in Homecoming and decorated a hall for Christmas, but their real tasks lay in planning the Sophomore Week and dance held February 8 - 13. They hosted daily activities like, Sweetheart eating, Cook Aid Chug-a-lug, Balloon Shaving, and of course their assembly, but the sure high-lite of the week had to be their dance. The theme was "Feelings of Forever", and the turnout to this girl's choice gala was tremendous. The committee has worked hard all year and they deserve a round of applause!

Welcome to Wheel of Fortune.

Onward and

As the year came to a close the Sophomores began to look at themselves not as Sophomores who are lower than humans, or the bottom of the ladder newcomers but as PRE-JUNIORS. Halfway through the year they begin to get swell headed and realize they have overcome the Sophomore year. They begin to look toward their Junior year and realize that they are now ready to face the world and that they are one step closer to their Senior year and also to their graduation day. Stronger and more mature after their first year at Layton High, the class of '90' has proved worthy of holding the mighty title of LANCERS!

"Be all that you can be." This phrase evokes thoughts of tanks lumbering across the desert or platoons of men bailing from airplanes. The Army used the phrase to enlist recruits but the Lancer Football Team took the phrase to heart. Capturing the"Region One Championship" and playing at the University of Utah were the highlights in a memorable season.

With one week before full practice the previous coach left for a job in California. Tom Moore, the offensive line coordinator was named to fill the position. He inherited an inexperienced team with few returning starters on either side of the ball, but in the Lancer tradition, that team became one of the state's elite.

With three pre-season wins to their credit, the stage was set for region play with the also unbeaten Bonneville Lakers. In a game that went back and forth, the Lancers staged a great fourth quarter comeback. With Layton down by two points and time running out, Troy Murray missed a game winning field goal. The Lancers got another chance as Murray was roughed on the kick, but this time he didn't miss. That game set a tempo the Lancers would follow throughout the season. With only one Region loss, the championship was sealed and a playoff berth guaranteed.

Layton defeated West Jordan 17 to 10 to move on to the State Quarter-Finals at the University of Utah. However, all good things must end and Skyline defeated Layton in a heartbreaking loss for one of the all time great grid iron teams.

CROSS COUNTRY GOLF

The sound of a gun signaling the beginning of a race, the clatter of golf clubs lifted into a car. What do these sounds have in common? They are the sounds of athletes in action at Layton High. Cross Country and Golf are two sports that are sometimes overlooked by the football-minded students. These sports require mental discipline and a will to achieve both as an individual and team member. A strong cross country and golf team helped to make the year rewarding.

VOLLEYBALL

On the night of Septeber First the volleyball team was not in high sprits. Earlier that day they had lost games to neighboring Clearfield and Roy at the Bingham Indivational Tournament. However, if a team ever bounecd back the Lancers did on the second day of play. Turning the momentum completly around to capture first place and in the process avenge the losses of the day before the Lancers showed their pride.

After not placing in the Layton/Clearfield tournament and taking second at the Highland tournament to the soon to be State Champions, Skyline, the Lancers were ready for league play.

Facing a tough region sechdule, that included at least one win over everybody except Weber, the Lancers come out with 5 wins and 5 losses. Their record gave the Lancers a State Playoff birth. The Lancers lost two straight at state but came out with heads held high.

Looking back the Lancers could take pride in that they defeated both Bonneville and Clearfield twice during the season. "We were always playing intense for Clearfield." stated senior Lara Harvey. Defeating Clearfield twice turned out to be just one highlight in a great season for the Lancers.

CRAZY

You would have to be crazy to get up each morning just to soak in water until you looked like a prune! It may sound strange to some people but the swimming team doesn't think so. Again the swim team showed how to dominate the sport by hard work and dedicated practice. Led by the team captians Matt Kelly, Kendell Symonds, Brad Barker and Kim Stantus, Layton sent many swimmers to Region and State competition, Outstanding competiors, Jill Morrow and Kendell Symonds both set new records.

WRESTLING

Strength, speed and stamina, these are the qualties that determine a champion wrestler. Layton has always had a tradition of excellence in wrestling by sticking to these three basic rules and it paid off again as four wrestlers placed in the state tournament. Greg Loveless, Chris Arguello, Darel Webb, and Tom Moore each took first in region and went on to place in state. They are but a few of the many wrestlers who, once again, provided a strong team for Layton.

LAYTON LANCERS 4-A

"Were number one" echoed throughout the room. Final score, Falcons 43 LANCERS 64.

The win was overwhelming as Lancers went out of control with the excitement and the Falcons sunk their heads low. The 1988 Sr. varsity team had come in as Sophomores a team and were going out in a blaze of glory, they are the first team to give Layton High a State Championship in AAAA Basketball. As the clock ran down toward the last minute in the game the Lancers were assured they were meant to be the AAAA State Basketball Champs!

ACADEMICS

Sports, drama, dances, etc. are all an important part of school but it really all boils down to one major achievement, academics. The measure of a school is the academic achievement. Layton is, and has been second to no one in academics. Placing in the top percentages of nearly all the scholastic fields, Layton continues to lead out as a top example of excellence.

Sponsored by the Physics Department, the bridge building contest intrigues would be engineers. Layton still holds the Bridge Building State Record which was established years ago.

HIGH HONOR GRADUATES

High Honor Graduates can be very proud of their academic achievement. It takes a long steady climb to be ranked among this elite group. High Honor Graduates must meet regular graduating requirements, have an accumulated grade point of 3.70 or better and be enrolled in at least seven academic classes from a prescribed group of advanced subjects. From a senior class of 530, only 38 students are entitled to claim this scholastic honor.

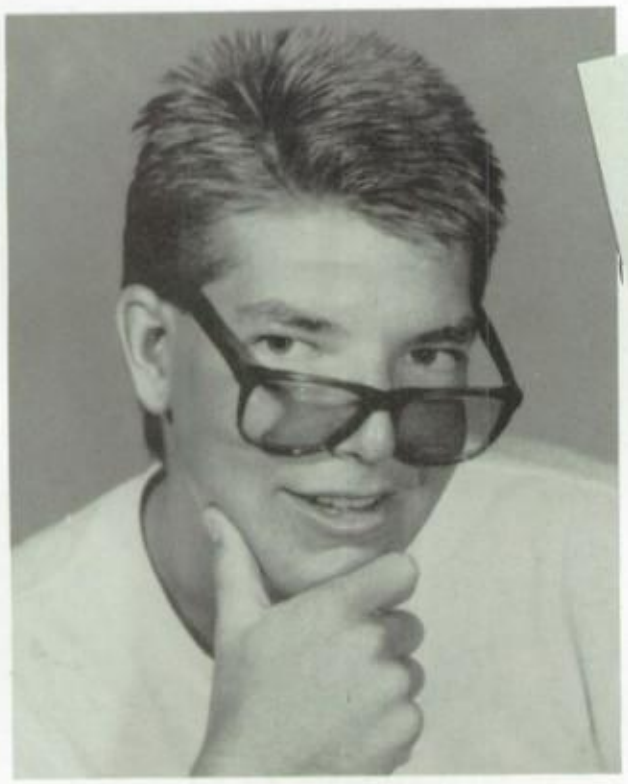
BOYS' STATE
GIRL'S STATE



Tye Arvidson

Just as high school can be compared to a microcosm of the real world, Girls' and Boys' State is a microcosm of American Government. Sponsored by the American Legion, worthy students from all over Utah converge on Utah State University campus to set up small units of working American Government. A practical appreciation is experienced by this "hand's on" approach to learning.

To emphasize the importance of a well rounded, deeply grounded education, President Ronald Reagan established the Presidential ACADEMIC Fitness Award. The criteria for selection is that students achieve a B/p average in all grades of school except grades K-2. The senior must complete by graduation at least 12 high school or higher level credits from the "New Basics" including english, math, science, social studies, foreign languages and computer science.

Are you the type who enjoys filling in little dots with a number 2 pencil? Did you score well on your A.C.T.? Do you enjoy Scholarly Trivia games? Then the Academic Olympiad Team is for you. Each year teams from Northern Utah and Southern Idaho meet at the host university, U.S.U. for an Academic Competition. Each team member takes 4 tests in the same academic areas at the A.C.T. during the morning session of the competition. Then, after a banquet, the teams meet in the "Starwars" round where each team member is responsible for answering 8 equestions. The round concludes with a couple of team questions. All of this is followed by an awards ceremony. Last year Layton's team placed #1 in both phases of the competition. We brought home 2 trophies, 3 plaques and 21 medals and this year's team plans to do the same.

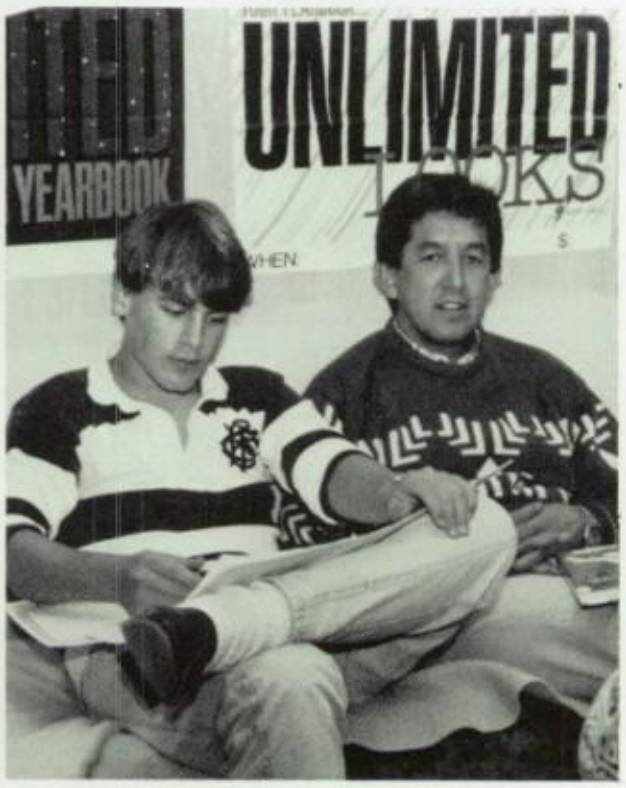
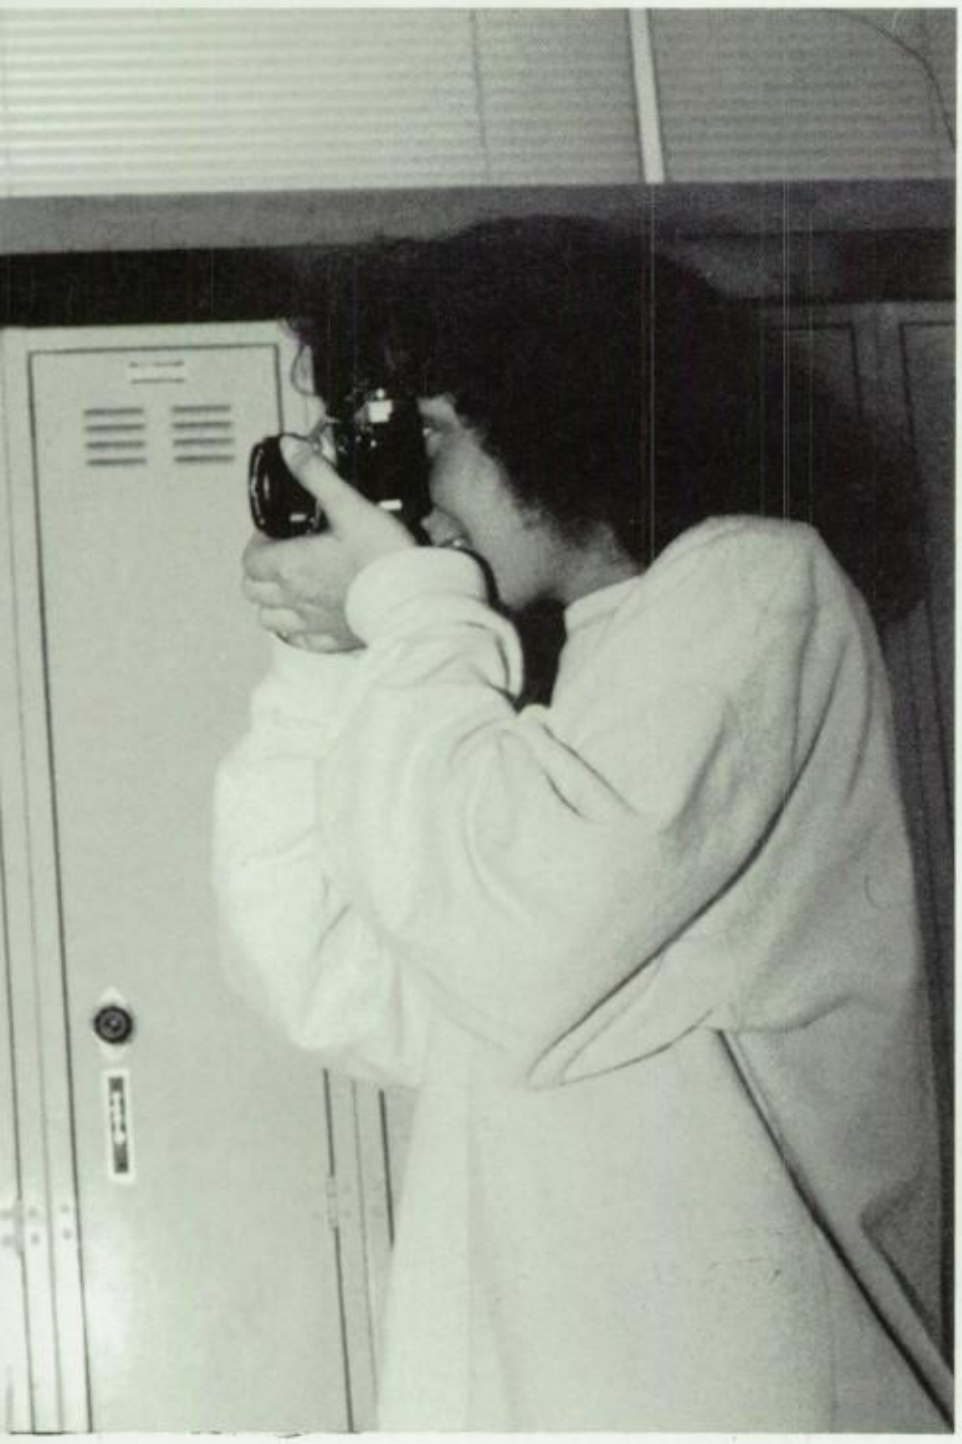
STAFF





As the yearbook staff, we had quite a heavy task on our shoulders. We had to write a book! It seems to be a common myth that all those lucky souls who were picked to serve on the staff were in for an eighth period of wandering aimlessly through the halls with official-looking press passes. Needless to say, this myth is entirely unfounded. A phenomenal amount of work is involved in the production of a book that will recall memories with a taste that is satisfying to nearly two thousand people. Making a yearbook can be frustrating, tiresome, tedious, and quite unrewarding. The decorative yearbook room served as a lounge and a cafeteria just as often as it did a pressure cooker, and there were just as many empty pizza boxes as there were broken pencils and crumpled papers. It was an experience that those involved will not soon forget.

CENTURION

The Centurion staff made a major contribution to the school year. Their goal of keeping the Lancers informed about important issues and events that affected them throughout the year was met carefully and with style. The Centurion maintained an omnipotent view and served the readers' interest well, while producing one of the most impressive publications ever produced at Layton High. The most popular section of the paper, Entertainment, provided movie reviews, calendars of exciting events along the Wasatch front, and hot spot locations for students. Being an organization that had to deal with deadlines, the effort of the Centurion staff should be appreciated and commended.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Trying to get organized in the American culture.

The studentbody of Layton High was blessed with six foreign exchange students this year who came from all corners of the world. Although none of them speak perfect English, they bravely enrolled in classes taught completely in the vernacular, alongside the rest of us. They struggled with American cultural tidbits such as "sluffing" and "cruising," and we struggled with figuring out what they were talking about. They showed their true nature most at football games where they were often seen acting just like Lancers always do. Their presence was a great social boon for us. They helped us to remember that we aren't the only civilization on Earth, which we in America are often inclined to think.

CLUB

The Layton High Pep Club enjoyed the success of the athletic programs this year. Watching our teams win gave them incentive to be extra spirited. Homecoming week was especially hectic with the secret football players and all the fun activities but lots of fun along with the work. Trying to spell things out in a card section at the Clearfield Pep Rally was great at practice, but the cards just didn't look quite right for the real performance. Sign-making, decorating and other fun class days certainly were more enjoyable than the days spent running and doing physical exercises for the core p.e. curriculum! Riding the buses with a bunch of loud Sophomore girls is an experience everyone should have during high school.

"Love, peace, your hair is full of grease."

"You never taught me this cheer."

Anything but normal describes the cheerleading squad at Layton, as could be seen. The entourage was made of seven exuberant juniors and superior seniors (not to be biased or anything . . .). Many nights found them yelling their lungs out and jumping around like crazed Layton groupies to cheer the Lancers on. The cheerleaders competed in many competitions and performed in many assemblies. With the constant demand for the cheerleaders, a lot of practice was needed. They could be found before or after school quite often, working to live up to the precedent of previous years.

BAND

This year the band did an outstanding job at many performances. They played at numerous football and basketball games as well as evening shows. During the football games they were accompanied by the Lancelles and by the Color Guard. They kept us going at all the games with their sideline songs. The contribution that the band gave to Layton High this year was definitely school spirit.

They use other props as well. The Color Guard worked hard over the summer and went to camp. They received most spirited guard. They went on to perform later in the year with the marching band and also at several assemblies and basketball games.

SOCIETY

Stacee Taylor lights the candles to begin the Honor Society Inductions.

This year the Honor Society was very progressive. This year was started with the induction ceremonies. All juniors and new members were inducted. Later in the year service projects were performed. Some of the projects this year were making favor trays for the sick in the hospital, and visiting people in convalescent homes. The Honor Society requires its members to complete service projects in order to attend the banquet. This year the year-end banquet was a success.

DEPARTMENTS

"Learning is an ornament in prosperity, a refuge in adversity, and a provision in old age." -Aristotle

Heat exhaustion takes its toll in the outdoor activities of the music department.

ART

"Imagination continually frustrates tradition; that is its function." The activity which creates art is imagination. It is through imagination that the artist reacts to the eternal world by expressing his or her own feelings. Words, forms, colors and sounds are created by imagination. Imaginations always seem to be flourishing in the art department. Art students may take a variety of classes from drawing, design, and commercial art to courses in ceramics and sculpture. Through this study of art, students learn art vocabulary, divergent production, art critiquing and design techniques that help students thrive in the transformation of imagination to tangible pieces of art.

SPEECH & DRAMA

William Shakespeare said that all the world's a stage, but men and women are merely players. At Layton High, many students take that belief to an even greater length. They are not merely players in the game of life; instead, they are performers of an art. Whether that art is dramatics or forensics, it is a vibrant expression of flourishing ideas. In the drama department, Mr. Ferrin leads students in beginning and advanced studies of acting, and helps those students to share their talents in the form of school plays. In the forensics department, Mr. Conner helps students understand the virtues of expressing opinions and ideas in organized contests. Debaters compete in a variety of areas including cross-examination and Lincoln-Douglas debate as well as other individual events. For now, these students may only be players, but tomorrow they may be the stars.

MUSICAL NOTES

Hans von Bulow boldly decreed: "In the beginning was rhythm." He took advantage of the prerogative for so many sayings: to be pithy and unfounded. Music is certainly older than rhythm, older, in fact, than any single element of the sounding complex that we call music today. Music has taken shape by the merging and developing of a number of different human utterances, which we see distinctly in the music department. Students in this area are involved on either a vocal or instrumental level. Students choose from a variety of classes including symphonic band, jazz ensemble, introductory choir, ladies vocal ensemble, orchestra, music theory, A cappella choir and Laytones. Whichever facet the music student chooses, it is certain that they will further develop that instinctive enjoyment of music that can be transposed into an art by the simple process of creative participation.

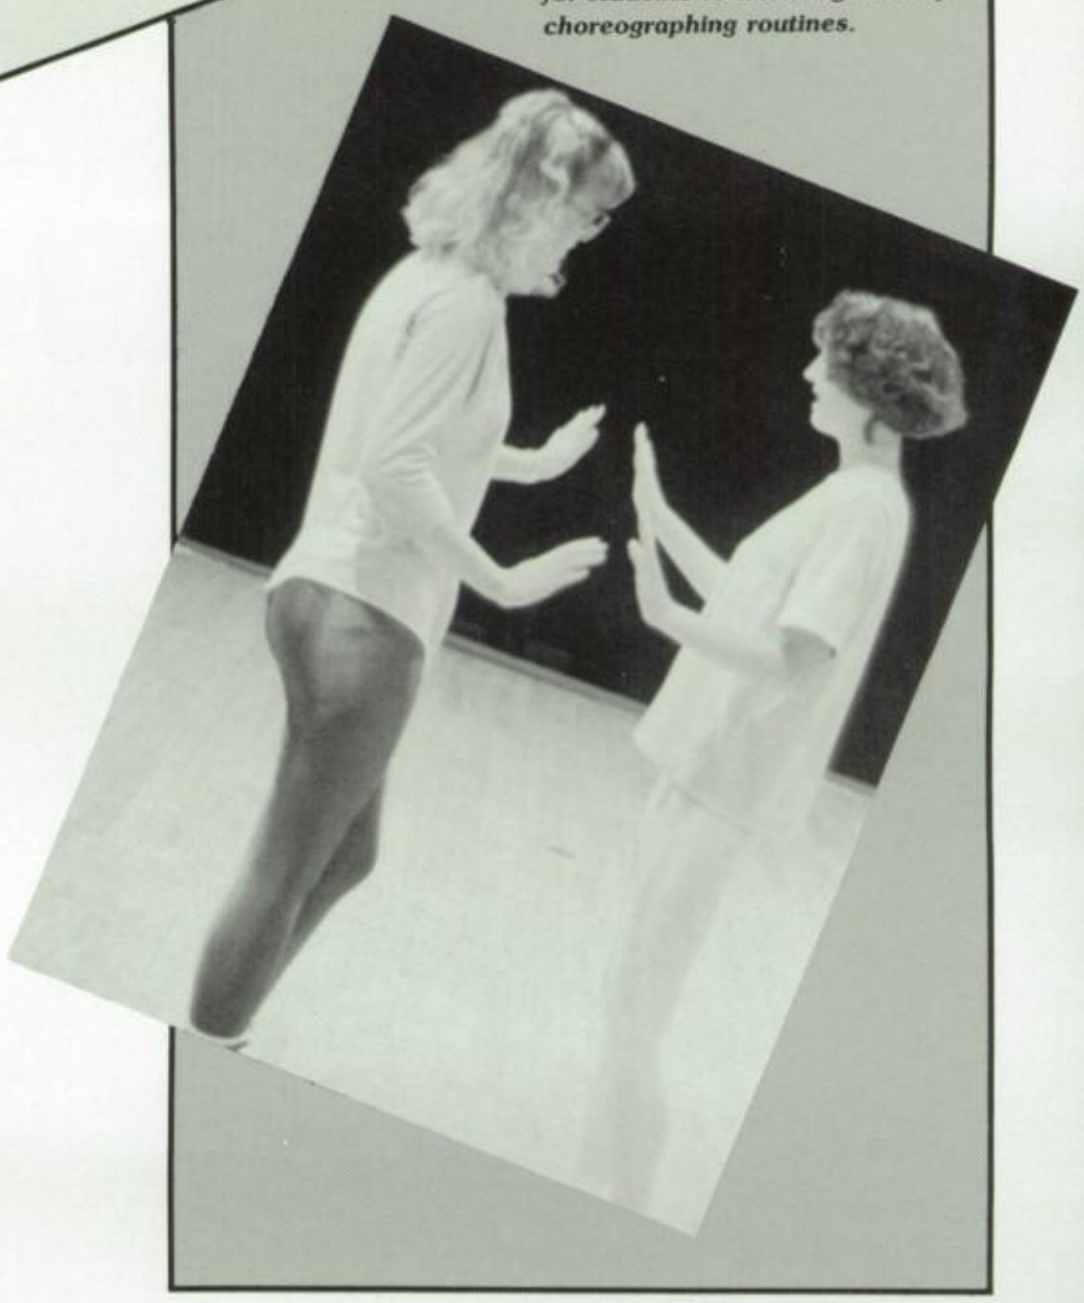
DANCE

"Go forth and foot it, girls," wrote William Shakespeare in Romeo and Juliet, encouraging the young women of the court to dance. For hundreds of centuries, the art of dance has been practiced and perfected by both men and women. Dance allows a person to portray a heritage, a story, or an idea through his or her body's movements, a feat that cannot be accomplished any other way. The dance department assists students in developing their abilitY of performing dances. In beginning dance, students learn the fundamentals of dance movements and the basics behind the body's ability to move. In intermediate dance, the emphasis is on choreography; students use the elements of dance to choreograph and perform their own dances. Miss Lundahl, the dance instructor, also advises the Dance Company, a group of students who choreograph dances to be performed during assemblies and at a recital at the end of the year.



Dance provides an opportunity for students to work together by choreographing routines.

Physical Education is not always that strenuous!

PHYSICAL ED.

Physical education includes any education which helps an individual to develop and control his or her body. However, some say such a definition is far too vague. Historically, some form of physical education has been praticed by all races and all nations. Physical education has been used to develop physical fitness and skills for war, by performances in religious rites and group festivals. Other purposes have been to prepare for and stage athletic competitions, to direct the play of children, to provide recreation for adults, and to treat disease. In modern times, fitness and sports conditioning classes are taken in order to satisfy the physical education requirement for graduation. Whatever the reasoning, physical education courses are a steadfast part of a high school education.

The REAL World

Layton High enjoys the advantage of having a strong vocational program right on campus. Students can choose from agricultural courses such as agricultural management, agricultural machinery, ornamental horticulture, and renewable natural resources. For those who find agriculture less than interesting, the motor shop offers motor maintenance, automotive mechanics, or small engine repair. Other options for the one required vocational credit are drafting, electronics, graphics, and welding. Although some do not find vocational subjects challenging, it is usually through these courses that students learn useful skills that will help them in the real job market. This is an advantage that some Lancers take full advantage of. These occupational courses take the student one step closer to a real life situation, where their acquired skills may be used.

Home economics offers many opportunities for creativity.

Gourmet Living

Anyone who writes off home economics classes as easy has obviously never tried to make gourmet brownies from scratch or sew a patchwork pillow with even seams. For some, home economics classes are pretty difficult. In "home ec." students learn skills that will positively be used in everyday life. One home ec. teacher contends that not all students will need to know algebra, but all will have to know how to manage a household in some way. In the home ec. department, students can choose between classes in cooking, sewing, restaurant management, or family living. After pondering on their usefulness, more and more students are realizing that home economics courses are fun and challenging.

Dish washing is one extremely enjoyable skill learned in home ec.

SCIENCE

"It gives me great pleasure to see the stubborness of an incorregible non-conformist warmly acclaimed." - Albert Einstein. Non-conformist scientists are becoming more widely acclaimed. Encouraging studies in the sciences. Whether students are studying biology, chemistry or physics, they are working toward the ultimate understanding of our world and how it operates. It makes no difference if the student is performing elementary experiments with dissections, elements or formulas or complex studies of cryonics, chemical reactions or gravitational acceleration; the student is making progress in the sciences, a challenging endeavor for most.

RIGHT?

It is said that mathematics goes along behind physics, making respectable what the physicist finds sensible. It is this ability of mathematics that mathematicians perfect and others envy. Math is a subject that students must study in order to graduate, but many students spend much more than the required time in math classes. Sometimes trying to pass the class and other times trying to expand their knowledge of mathmatics. Students can choose from a variety of math courses from business math to calculus. Math is becoming the key to many other areas: science, computer studies and medicine; it is a key that most students will need to use. Even if math is not the most entertaining subject, most students will agree that it is one of the most challenging.

Forked Tongues

¿Habla espanol? Parlez-vous francais? Sprechen Sie Deutsch? For those students taking classes in the foreign languages, hopefully the answer to the above question is sí, oui, or ja! Layton High students who choose to learn a second language now have the option of taking Spanish, French or German classes. Many students have decided to take a foreign language in order to satisfy the two-year language study many colleges now require for admittance. However, after learning a new language, most students find the prospect of conversing languages skills may be quickly forgotten and lost forever. But for others willing to dedicate themselves to the study of a new language, Spanish, French or German studies may open the door to a whole new culture.

Susan Taylor studies a forei language intently.

English always seems exciting.

Essential English

Accolades on human nature from Goethe, remarks on piety from Socrates, comments on government by Thoreau, and thoughts on existentialism from Lois Cook are concepts one will inevitably face sometime in a trek through the Layton High School English Department. Since English is a required course for sophomore, junior and senior students, English classes (and English homework) have remained a minor, if not major, part of a high school student's education. Whether or not that English homework will have any positive affect upon students' lives in the future remains to be seen. Until then, if one is studying Shakespeare with Mrs. Elzey, poetry with Mrs. Kimber or nihilism with Mrs. Odoardi, English is an essential, if not enjoyable, part of life at LHS.

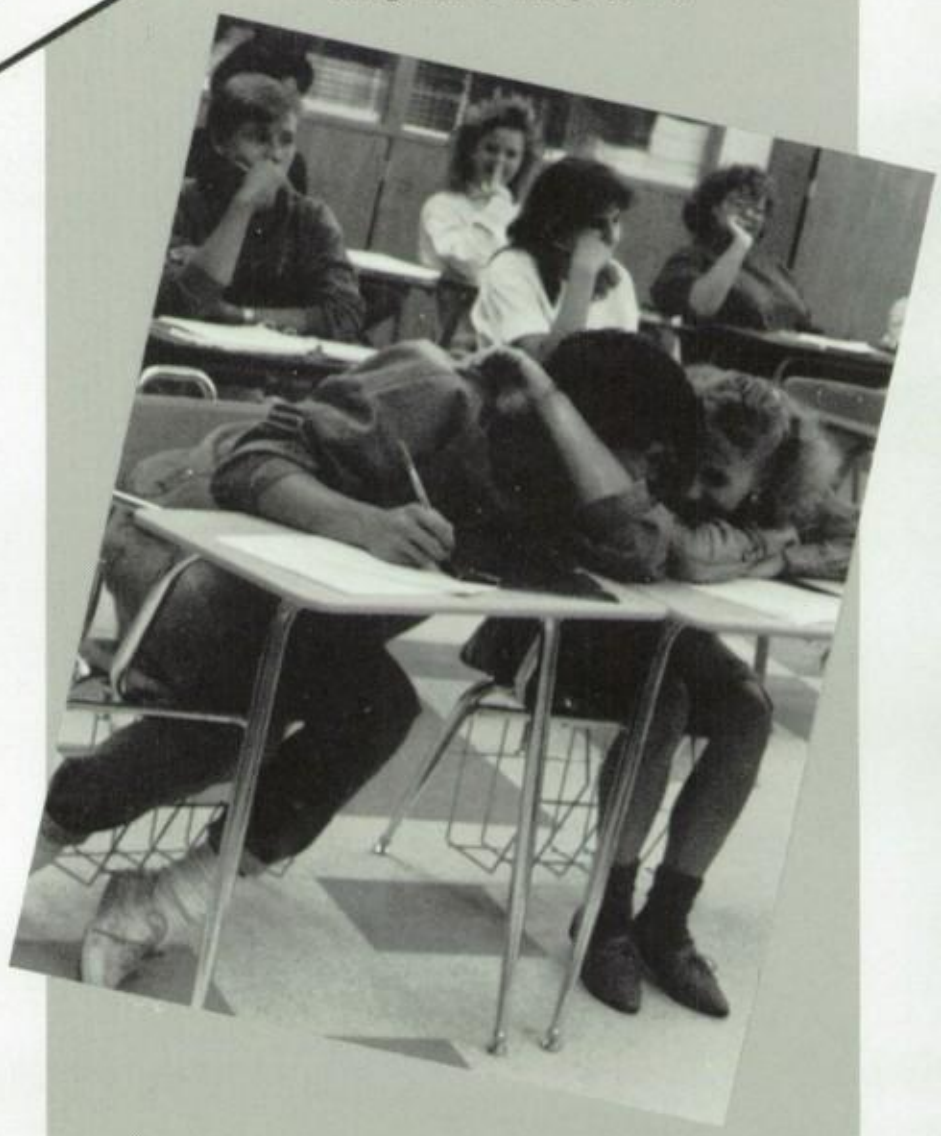
WE THE PEOPLE

"The worst thing in this world, next to anarchy, is government."
- Henry Ward Beecher. Whether or not government is the worst thing in this world, it is an essential part of students' lives and students' social science coures. History classes at Layton High School have, throughout the year, studied the rise and fall of governments, the rise and fall of civilizations and the rise and fall of individuals, both in the United States and abroad, in hopes of learning something about mankind and the world in which one lives. Though some may argue that world civilization, American history and Constitutional studies are only necessary evils, it is likely that Mr. Conner, Mr. Brimhall and Mrs. Schroader will disagree. After all, social studies is not really that loathsome.



Apparently some things are more interesting than a history lecture.

PREPARING FOR THE FUTURE

It's a dog eat dog, or maybe even a cat eat cat business world out there. Everybody is striving to succeed in life. The driving force for many people is "MONEY", that's what makes the world go 'round. This continuous struggle of survival of the fitest proves that people must be prepared before they embark on their long journey through business. For this reason, the business department is an important part of the curriculum. Here students learn vital skills that will help them in the future. Those of you who miss out on this chance to get a step ahead in the business world, what can be said except, "You missed out!!"

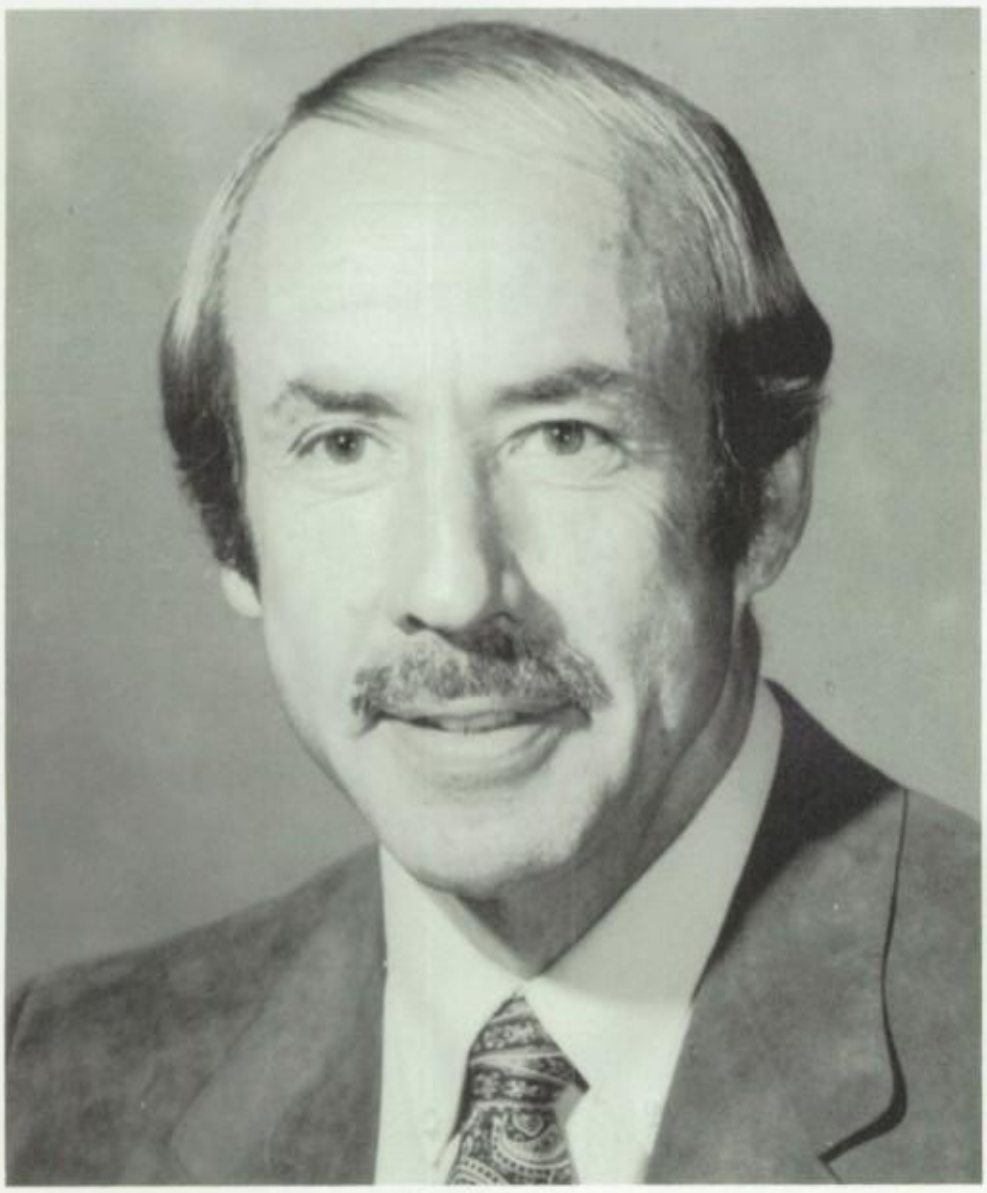
ADMINISTRATION



Paul Smith
Principal

BUZZZZZZZZZ!!! "Hey! It's 6:30 a.m. in sunny Salt Lake and time for another Monday morning rush hour." This is the typical way students rose fro the first day of school. It was a time to wish they could sleep-in and become a shut-in so as not to have to deal with the trials of Layton High. What students didn't think about was the teachers who went to school a week earlier to prepare lessons and arrange desks. The first thought in an educator's mind that morning had to be, "Four years of college and I go back to high school."

Fortunately for everyone involved they did get up to face endless faculty meetings, student fights, crowded halls, late work and sophomores. What could possess a grown mature person to subject himself to such a job? The good pay? I think not. It must be an ounce or two of dedication, and helping a young person grow into a responsible adult.

Of course, the custodians, cooks, secretaries and administrators cannot be overlooked; these people take the place of the students mothers for seven hours a day every week. They clean up other peoples messes, feed students who don't appreciate their efforts, and generally take care of business.

During the year the administration, faculty, cooks, and cutodians made students see the good, the bad, and the ugly in life. Everyone can remember a favorite teacher from high school, but this year everyone should be remembered. And don't forget to thank a teacher if you can read this . . . . . .
